

THE PHOENIX AWARD®

COMMITTEE

1973 PAC Winner

Doctor James P. Poole

Doctor Poole has been associated with the glass industry since his graduation from Pennsylvania State University with a Bachelor of Science Degree in Ceramics in 1940. While employed by Brockway Glass, he completed his work on a Doctor's Degree, which was awarded to him in July 1947.

He received the Frank Forest Award for the most significant publication of the year in Glass Technology, and the Chesterman Award for his work on the application of surface protective coatings to glass containers.

He holds fourteen basic patents on glass and is the author of eleven technical papers. He maintains membership in the American Ceramic Society, Keramos, Sigma XI, Society of Glass Technology, and the New York Academy of Science.